

Rebecca Kling

TRANSGENDER PERFORMANCE ARTIST
AND EDUCATOR

“A CHARMING, SMART AND UNPREACHY snapshot of what it means for all of us to live in a world where assumptions about gender cover up more than they reveal about who we truly are.” - Kerry Reid, Chicago Tribune

“Kling is a CHARMING PRESENCE, and she explains her struggle to own her gender identity compellingly.” - Kris Vire, TimeOut Chicago

Performances & Workshops for Any Organization

Contact: Rebecca Kling, 847-921-0275, rebecca@rebeccakling.com
View performance videos at www.rebeccakling.com

Rebecca Kling is a transgender artist and educator who explores the performance of gender and identity through solo pieces and educational workshops. Her multidisciplinary performances incorporate conversational storytelling, personal narrative, humor, movement, video projection, and more. Rebecca takes the position that sharing accessible queer narrative with a wide audience is a form of activism, and that understanding combats bigotry.

Rebecca has performed her material and conducted workshops at theatres and universities around the country, including Fringe Festivals in Chicago, Kansas City, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, and Minneapolis. A graduate from Northwestern University's Department of Performance Studies with an Adjunct Major in Animate Arts, Rebecca Kling is also an instructor at the Piven Theatre Workshop, on the Pride Films and Plays board of directors, and a syndicated blogger with BlogHer.

2013 Trans 100 honoree, an inaugural overview of the breadth and diversity of work being done in, by, and for the transgender community across the United States